ALICE ROSE GEORGE

ALICE ROSE GEORGE is a photography editor and curator, advising private and corporate collectors on their photography collections. She co-authored a book and bought the collection called Hope Photographs, an exhibition of which has been traveling the country for the last 8 years. She authored 25 and Under/Photographers and was curator of that traveling exhibit. As one of the four founders of Here Is New York: A Democracy of Photographs, she created one of the most remarkable tributes to the people and events of September 22, 2001. She has published five books on photography. In September, 2006, "The Office/In and Out of the Box" opened at the Dorsky Gallery in Long Island City, an exhibit she co-curated. Also, she worked with two other curators of a year-long series of exhibitions at the Japan Society in New York on new work from Asian artists. Starting at Time Magazine, she has been photography director of many magazines, among them: GEO, Fortune, DoubleTake, Granta, and Details, as well as served as consultant for others. She has been the Director of Magnum New York and the Publisher of Granta in England. She serves on several international juries and foundations.

Currently, she is a curator/advisor with JGS foundation, art advisor to private collectors; representative for Italian publisher Damiani, creating art books; director of photography for USNews special editions.
